Oh wow! That's great that they have a timeline. It's gonna be really nice when it's done yea - on my phone it said 50% chance of rain. it said rain this morning and then rain later today. Hopefully it will not be raining when I have to go to me car this afternoon ;)

so the guy came and took out the old furnace and put the new one in place and ripped out a bunch of the duct work in the basement. the compressor for the AC is in the yard too - not set up or anything - just there. They only have 14 days after delivery of the furnace to ge the job done - so that is a saving grace - at least there is a timeline imposed by someone else - not just me. I dont know why NStart has that rule - but they do. That's fine with me ;)

What's going on? Didn't do anything last night either. I totally wasn't aware that it was gonna pour out today. I checked weather.com and it said only a 30% chance of rain so I left all the windows open upstairs and the ones in the kitchen and bathroom downstairs...so I guess everything will be soaked!!

good morning

i didnt do anythign last night. i went home and took a nap and slept way too long. then got up and watered the garden and the roses and we went and picked up something for dinner and ate and watched tv. not an eventful evening or a productive one.
